

WHAT CAN GERONTOLOGY ADD TO YOUR NURSING DEGREE?

UNC Charlotte offers an Undergraduate Minor, a Concentration in Gerontology with the Interdisciplinary BA, and Graduate Certificate in Gerontology (with an Early Entry option)

WHAT IS GERONTOLOGY?

Gerontology is the study of longevity. Students of gerontology study not only physiological changes that occur with aging, but also social roles, normative expectations, attitudes and beliefs, stereotypes, and policy, health and economic issues which define the aging experience.

HOW DOES GERONTOLOGY COMPLEMENT MY NURSING DEGREE?

Expertise in gerontology will better equip you to care for the patients you are likely to encounter-older adults; since the U.S. is projected to have greater numbers of older adults than ever before in the next thirty years, we know that a growing proportion of the patient population will be older adults. Sadly, studies show that most nursing students prefer not to work with older adults, and many people perceive older adults as fragile, sickly, or dependent. However, this is not the case for most older adults. For this reason, as well as the increasing life expectancies and diversity of the older adult population, nurses with expertise in gerontology are a valuable asset in many health care settings. Specialization in gerontology will not only enhance your skills as a nurse working with older adults, but it will set you apart as unique and place you in an ideal role to serve in leadership and mentoring capacities in order to enhance care of older adults at your agency.
